Lagranja Spain

Lagranja is a design studio founded in May 2002 by young creatives working mainly in interior design, exhibitions and industrial design projects in Spain and Italy. The studio constantly collaborates with other creatives (graphic designers and new media, photographers and video makers, architects) who join us to complete each project. Since 2001 we combine our professional activity with teaching at the following schools of design: ELISAVA, EINA, Barcelona IED, Istituto Universitario di Architettura di Venezia IUAV and FABRICA the creative center of the Benetton group.

Barcelona Activa

Location: Barcelona, Spain
 Graphic Design: Mario Eskenazi

Lagranja designs two new spaces for the Barcelona Activa headquarters. These two projects are aimed at creating a space of development and dialogue between the city and its most vital components. Both emerge from the restructuring of an existing building, with a new volumetric and functional vision.

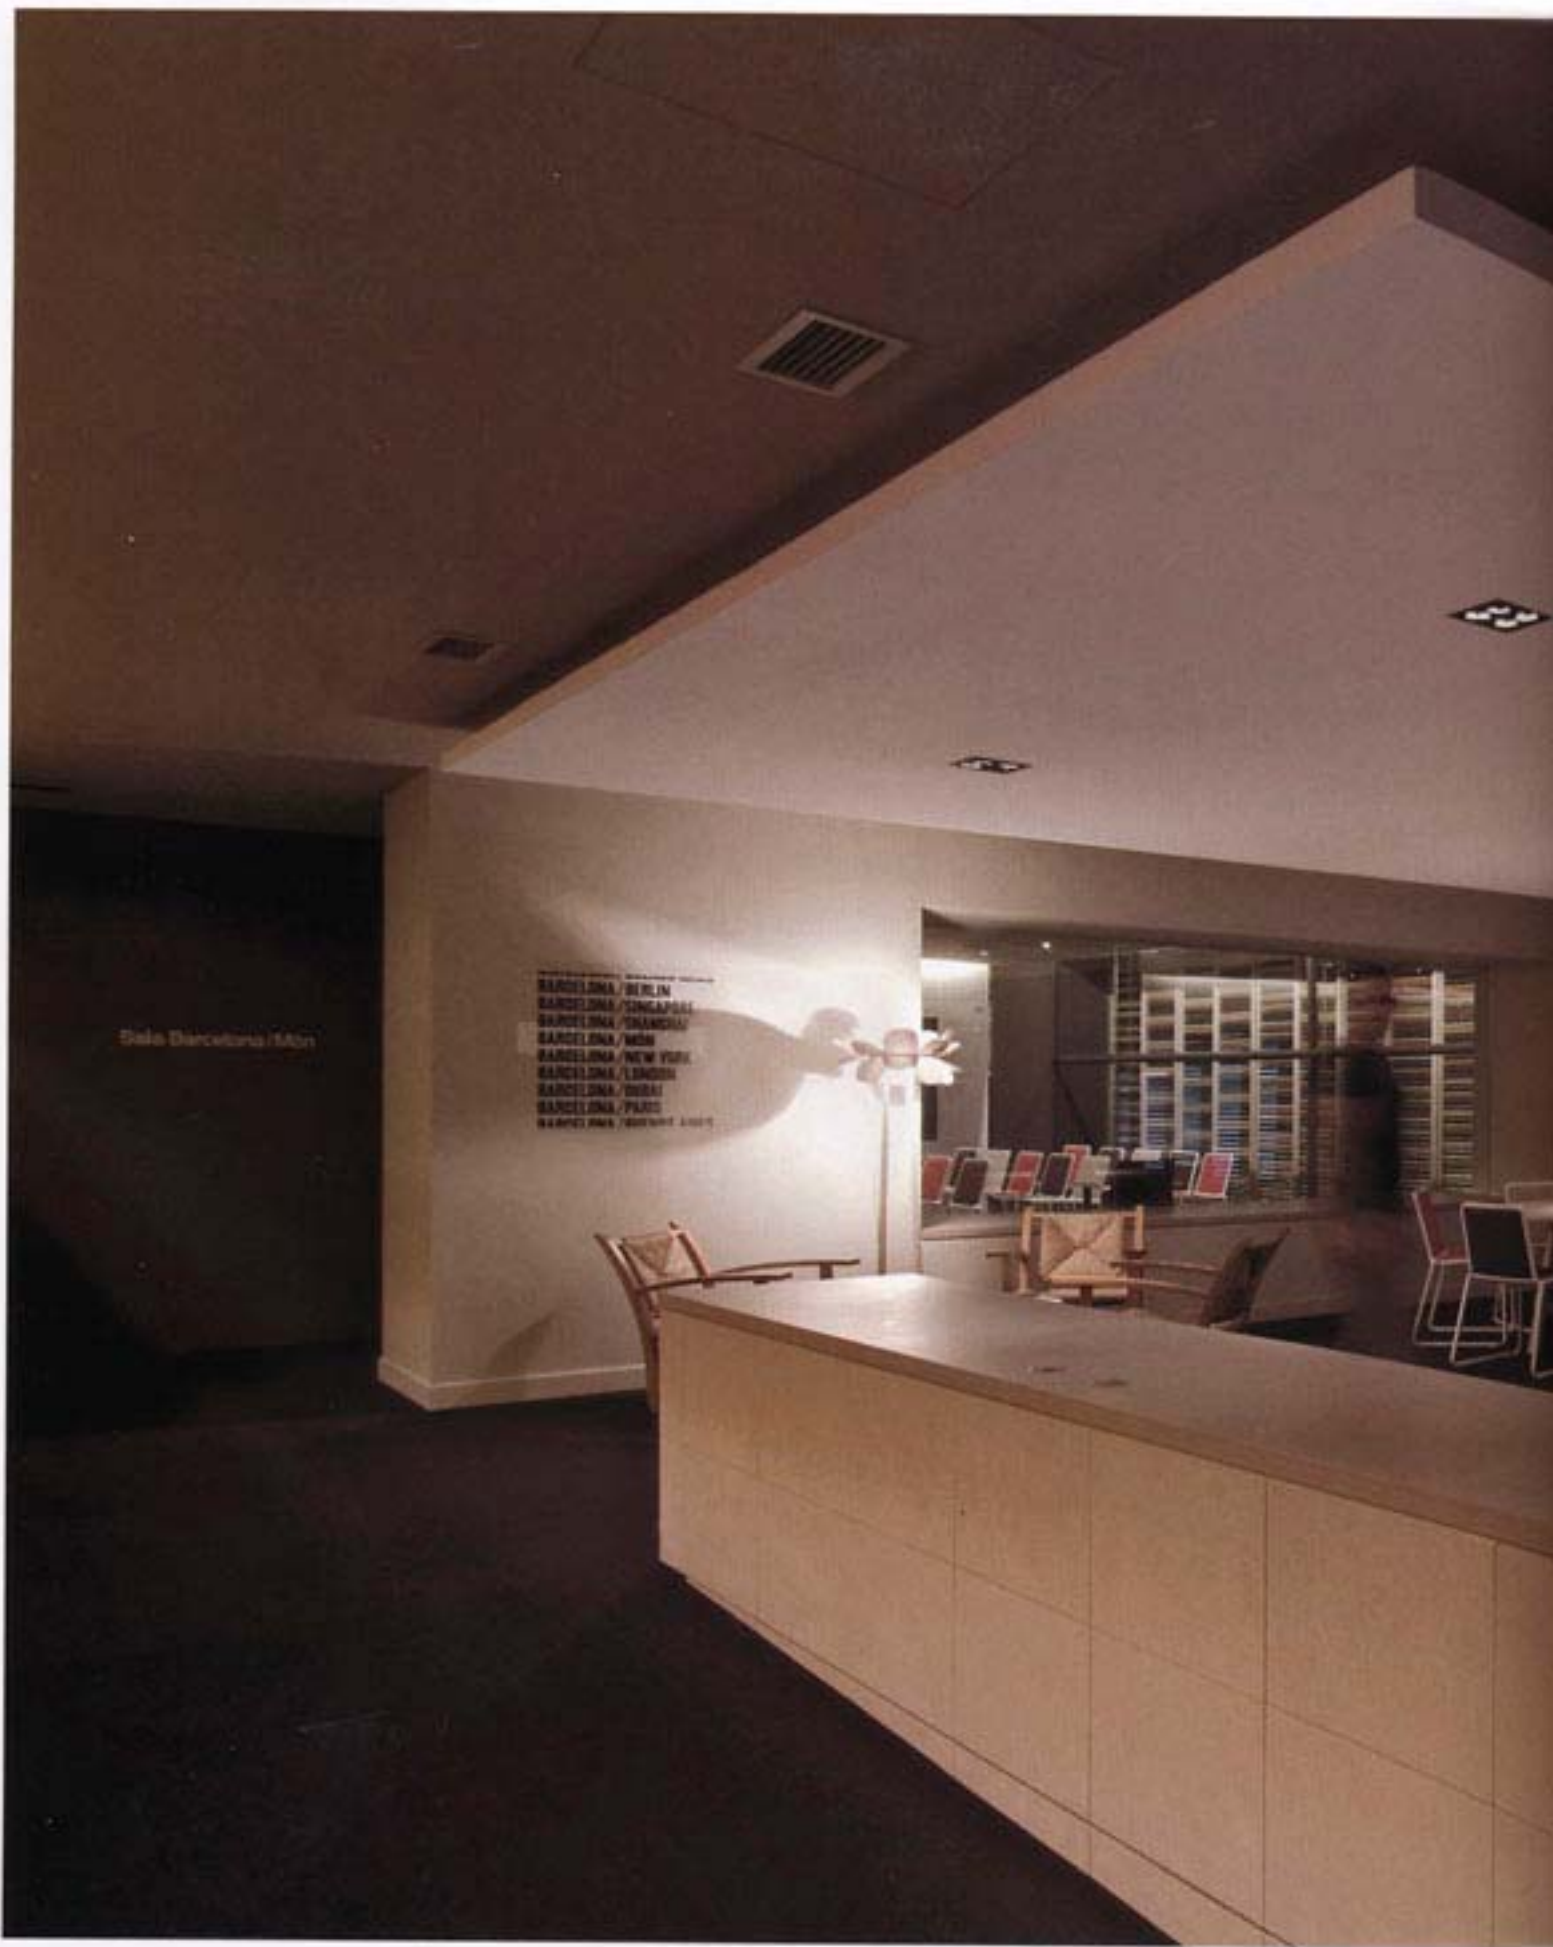

The Centro de Iniciativa Emprendedora—an incubator for young companies—is laid out like a small "city" in which the different areas and functions (front desk, training and orientation rooms, meeting rooms, classrooms, auditorium and offices) are rapidly identifiable thanks to a precise formal typology.

The Barcelona Business Corner is designed to introduce the city to foreign investors. Project proposes a covering based on modular colored wooden slats; its design was inspired by the shutters of buildings in Barcelona and its purpose is to formally unify the space and give it a distinctive character.

This is a new corporate project that speaks English.

It's a new model of a language school that Grupo Planeta has entrusted Lagranja to reproduce nationwide.
